

TYROL'S GERMANS TO REMAIN UNDER ITALIAN RULE

Fuehrer and Mussolini Apparently Agree Upon This As Concession to Italy

PAID TERRIFIC PRICE

German Troops Were at Every Border Before Any Others Could Reach Frontier

By H. R. Knickerbocker
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, Mar. 19.—Europe's democracies have won the right to rest in their corner for the regulation 62 seconds today.

The judges are rounding up the last round of dictatorships. These are now stronger than ever and ready to attempt a knockout in the last round of this "bloodless war."

The Fuehrer and Premier Mussolini today apparently had agreed that south Tyrol's 250,000 Germans shall remain under Italian rule as part payment of the terrific price Hitler paid when he was forced to allow Hitler to take over Austria.

Some observers in this gloomy moment aver that peace will be saved in Europe by giving Adolph Hitler and his allies everything they could regain by war.

Experts agreed that the German army which swarmed over Austria was at every border before the Italian or any other troops could have approached the frontier.

East Falls League Chorus Pleases Bristol E. L. Group

NEWTOWN, Mar. 19.—A treat was in store for young people of Bristol Group of Epworth Leagues last evening when a young men's chorus of East Falls Methodist Church presented a program of varied selections under direction of George Gotwals.

The 22 who made up the chorus last evening are all members of the East Falls Epworth League, and they presented each number with feeling, and showed splendid talent. The accompanist was Miss Bertha Bond, of the East Falls Church, and accompanying the group here were the pastor, the Rev. Benjamin S. Stull; and the superintendent of the Sunday School, and other church officials.

With business of the Bristol Group quickly dispatched, Arthur Blaker, Yardeley, turned the remainder of the evening over to Mr. Gotwals and his chorus. The group numbers included: "Goin' Home," from New World Symphony (Dvorak); "Sweet By and By," "John Peel," "Can I Forget You," "Landams," selections from "Pinafore"; "Old Jonah"; "Sundown."

The soloist, William Linton, was roundly applauded for his rendition of "The Glory Road," being in splendid voice and also showing fine dramatic ability. Other solo by Mr. Linton were: "At Dawning" (Cadman), and "A Dream." Numbers were given by a quartet, including Messrs. Russell Clayton, first tenor; Earl Gotwals, second tenor; Webster Gotwals, baritone; Harold Gotwals, bass. The three latter are sons of the director of his fine musical organization. The four were well received when they sang: "Navy Blue and Gold," "Oh, Grim, Gray Palisades," "Old Man Noah," and "Down By the Old Mill Stream," the latter being enacted with appropriate gestures.

The forepart of the evening included: Scripture, Miss May Forsythe, of the Newtown League; prayer, the Rev. Carl Hammerly, pastor of the hostess church; minutes, Miss Ruth Satterfield, Yardeley; treasurer's report, Miss Frances Benner, Hulmeville League.

The Rev. Francis Thomas, pastor of Yardeley Church, announced the North District League convention on May 6th and 7th in Allentown, with seven groups of Leagues being included. The Rev. Stull, East Falls Church, who is business manager of the Pocono Institute, spoke of the institute to be held next summer, mentioning that Yardeley League already has 27 registrations paid.

The president, Mr. Blaker, named as members of the nominating committee presidents of the Group Leagues, with James Widenhafer, Newtown, as chairman.

Banners for attendance and percentage of members present were awarded to Scottsville League. Other Leagues represented included: Bristol, Emilie, Hulmeville, Morrisville, Newtown, Trevoe, Scottsville, Yardeley, Langhorne.

The May rally will be in Scottsville Church, when superintendent of the North District, Dr. Howard Hand, will speak.

The Newtown members served refreshments of sandwiches and coffee in the church social hall.

BENSALEM GYM SHOW ATTRACTS BIG CROWD

Exhibition Was A Riot of Fun and Skill Which Amused Large Audience

WAS A DECIDED SUCCESS

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Mar. 19.—A big crowd of spectators jammed every nook and corner of Bensalem High School's gymnasium to witness the fifth annual exhibition presented by the boys and girls' gym teams, here last night. It was pronounced a huge success at the conclusion of the program. The crowd was perhaps the largest ever to attend the colorful and spectacular event. They cheered, laughed, howled and applauded on numerous occasions as the acts one after another were unfolded before their eyes.

Miss Elizabeth Dildine filled in as girls' coach, due to the absence of Miss Helen Smith, who is ill. George Reimer, boys' coach, directed the boys.

Among the acts presented: the Virginia Reel, the obstacle race, comedy act, novelty act, relay games, both boys' and girls' tumbling and apparatus work were acclaimed the loud and by the audience. The first five were of the farcical type event, while the latter four were more physical demonstrations with the performers going through their various exercises to the applause of the spectators.

The Virginia reel was performed by group of Junior boys and girls, who dressed in old fashioned farmer outfit, swung their partners around gaily to the tune of a ragtime rhythm, the stamping of feet and clapping of hands. Of course the background was a mythical barn. To keep in fitting with the occasion, a number of them stuck tags on their backs representing old-time characters. For instance the entire Yokum family of Mammy, Pappy, Grandma, Phippy and Baby were all present in all their glory to join in on the occasion. Others there were Hairless Joe, Daisy Mae, Martha Rae Tillie the Toller, and Judy Garland. All helped to put on a swell act.

In the obstacle race, the object was to line up at one end of the gym, then run around, through, over and under different obstacles placed in their path and to return to their line again in relay form. The entire course followed was crawling under a bench, grabbing a basketball from a circle, dribbling down the court to drop the sphere into the net within five shots, replace the ball in the circle, straddle vault over the back, transport a set of three Indian clubs from one circle to another using only the right hand, walking a narrow beam of wood about 1 foot long, then after crawling through a barrel, each had to return to her group before the next started. Betty Bound gave demonstration of the course taken before the race started.

The obstacle that was the main downfall of most of the performers was the basketball throw, while the transporting of the clubs also became very confusing to many in their haste to get back to the finish line. These and the part of crawling through the barrel provided the audience with numerous laughs from start to finish. Each team was composed of 12 girls and in the first race, the Sophomores beat the Freshies, while the Seniors finished up ahead of the Juniors to win the closing race.

To add more riot to the program, Vic Swadis, Joe Dedrick, and Alex Malone were decked out in hilarious rigger's then maneuvered through crazy actions that nearly had the customers rolling in the aisles. It opened with Swadis, the "Baby" of the act, pushing his "pappy" in a baby coach while "pappy" pulled nonchalantly away on a big cigar, took a swallow of milk from a bottle with a nipple on it only to spit it out like so much tobacco juice. Meantime, Malone entered as a "Duke" but was in a short time disposed of his trousers, revealing a suit of long underwear.

A group of Sophomore boys put on the act called the "novelty act" in which they did everything backwards. They placed a large paper bag over their heads with the face sketched on the back; their ties, pants, belts, stockings and gloves were all put on backward, then they crazily went through the exercises of a drill backward. Unable to get their shoes on backward, this medium was the only way in which the people could tell which way they were facing.

In the girls' and boys' apparatus work as well as the tumbling acts, both groups showed fine physical skill in performing many difficult feats on the various pieces, following which they built pyramids.

The ribbon dance, performed by a group of seventh grade girls, was a "hop, skip and jump" affair with a set of two skipping around and under couples holding green streamers above their heads. The folk dance or handkerchief dance, given by some ninth grade girls, was a Dutch dance with the girls and boys rigged out in Dutch costumes. Edith Stuhlrazer of the ninth grade, gave a solo tap dance to the tune of "I Double Dare You" for which she received a fine ovation.

HERE AND THERE IN BUCKS COUNTY

Guest Day was observed by the members of the Newtown New Century Club at their meeting in the club house, at Newtown. In attendance were 85 persons, including 25 members of the Yardeley Civic Club, who were the guests of the local club.

In order to devote the entire afternoon to the program which was featured by the presentation of a pageant, the business session was omitted. The address of welcome was given by the president, Miss M. Elizabeth Palmer.

Answering the question, "What has farming to offer the American youth?" at the meeting of the Northampton Farmers' Club held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Ridge, at Trevoe, Clifford Yerkes declared that farming has just as much to offer the boys and girls in this country as any other industry. Mr. Yerkes added, however, that if youth wishes to succeed, it must have a genuine love for farming and must be willing to work hard. Speaking on the same question, Mr. Yerkes said farmers in the West are handicapped because of an over production of crops, but the farmers in the East have an advantage because of their proximity to the markets.

Showing what could be done to popularize Pennsylvania among tourists, J. Carroll Molloy, past president of the Rotary Club of Doylestown, described to his fellow club members what he found was being done in Southern California under the direction of a former Doylestown resident, Don Thomas.

Mr. Molloy, who recently spent some time in Los Angeles county, Cal., and had an excellent opportunity to see how that section has been popularized, explained how it is done by the All Year Club of Southern California, with the enthusiastic co-operation of all citizens, not merely business men.

Representatives of the State Game Commission and the Bucks County Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs helped to make the meeting of the North Penn Fish, Game and Forestry Association Tuesday night one of the most outstanding so far this year. Approximately 200 men were present.

Charles A. Rowe, Doylestown, president of the county federation, described the activities of sportsmen's organizations in this section. Mr. Rowe said there now are sixteen clubs with a total membership of about 1,500.

Concerning the suggestion about raising quail for propagation purposes Mr. Rowe advised the organization before going into such a venture. He pointed out that in Morrisville the

Two Calves Lost; Remove 50 Head of Cattle From Two of Structures

3 COMPANIES THERE

NEWTOWN, Mar. 19.—Fifty head of cattle were lead to a place of safety yesterday noon when a barn on the George School farm burned to the ground. Thirteen of those saved were located in the barn in which the fire occurred, being young stock, and the remainder were lead from the dairy barn adjoining, the latter structure however being saved from the flames.

Two calves were lost in the conflagration, the total loss from which has not been determined.

The building, which measured about 50x50 feet, was two stories in height, frame on stone.

Officials at George School state they do not know in which portion of the structure the fire originated. When discovered by men working at the barn the place was a mass of flames.

Fire companies from Newtown, Langhorne and Yardeley responded to calls, and were instrumental in saving the dairy barn adjoining and other nearby buildings.

Students were not at the school. Spring vacation period being in effect at the present time.

Crops, stored in the barn, were also destroyed, but figures of quantities were not available from the school.

IMPROVE LIGHTING OF STREETS HERE

Highway, South of Mill Street, Is Now Illuminated By Seven Lights

OTHERS ARE PLACED

Street lighting in Bristol is being improved and during the past few days a number of new lights have been placed throughout the Borough.

The most noticeable improvement is along the Highway, route 13, south of Mill street as far as the borough line at Otter Creek bridge.

Seven lights have been placed along this stretch of roadway and it is a decided improvement. It is also a great safety factor as many pedestrians traverse this route in going to and returning from employment at plants located to the south of Bristol.

Seven of the lights are what is known as "1000 lumen" while the one placed at the Otter Creek bridge line is "2500 lumen."

Other lights placed throughout the Borough include the following:

Prospect street, between Corson and Beaver; Wood and Taylor streets; each being of 1000 lumen. A 2500 lumen lamp has been placed at Wood and Filmore streets and another of equal brilliancy at Taylor and Radcliffe streets.

Lighting of the parking space, south of Mill street, is being studied and it is planned to now place two lamps of the 2500 lumen and one of 1000 lumen for the time being.

FIND MAN DEAD IN FIELD WITH GUN CLUTCHED IN HAND

HAD BEEN JILTED

Letter in Pocket Indicated He Intended Killing Bensalem Girl

A man was found dead propped against a heap of baskets in a field in Bensalem Township, yesterday. A .22 calibre rifle was still clutched in the man's hand, and he was later identified as Stanley Olesinsky, 50 years of age.

The home address of Olesinsky is given as 3315 Edgemont street, Philadelphia.

He was fully clothed, and had a wrist watch on his left wrist, and a lady's watch in his pocket, along with $200 in cash and a letter written in Polish presumably addressed by Olesinsky to himself. TIRED OF STRONG-ARMERS

Seattle for some years has been a happy hunting ground for labor leaders of strong-arm proclivities. Not many months ago, the teamsters' union chief, Dave Beck, was the recognized political boss of the city—a boss with power of life or death over industry which probably transcended the power of any other American municipal boss.

Dave Beck apparently had Seattle safely in his pocket until the split came between the A. F. of L. and CIO. Beck and his teamsters stayed in the A. F. of L. So the CIO formed its own political organization and ran Lieutenant Governor Victor Meyers, former jazz band leader, against Beck's Mayor John F. Dore. There was a third candidate in the mayoralty primary who was running not as an A. F. of L. man or a CIO man, but as a citizen who wanted good government in Seattle—Councilman Arthur B. Langlie. Langlie got more votes in the primary than CIO's Meyers and Beck's Dore combined.

Inasmuch as Beck's Mayor Dore ran an inglorious third, the election was between CIO's Meyers and Seattle's Citizen Langlie. Langlie won, polling more than 60 per cent of the votes. And this is what Langlie said before his election: "The city government will be strictly impartial between rival groups of labor and between labor and its employers. Seattle, if I am elected mayor, will not countenance lawlessness and violence."

Seattle voters have overwhelmingly signified their approval of the type of government which Mr. Langlie promises. They have emphatically signified their disapproval of strong-arm labor rule, either by an A. F. of L. boss or by a CIO boss. Thus a new twist—and one pleasing to the American-minded citizen—is given to that quotation which Mr. Roosevelt used to like: "A plague o' both your houses."

FIVE-SUIT BRIDGE

If the alleged pastime of contract bridge had been exhausted of all its possibilities, if all bridge players were good players, if there were no more willing victims for bridge classes and eager customers for bridge books, then there might be an honest reason for complicating the game with a fifth suit and a host of new rules and conventions. But the new game, at a disinterested distance, seems intended merely to make confusion worse confounded.

The bridge experts are badly divided about the five-suit game. Some are afraid it may take the public's fancy. Some point a finger of scorn at other games, that have briefly swept the country and swept out again into oblivion. Some are getting busy to write books about the new game for the benefit of those who try to play it.

Only the Treasury Department of the United States views the crisis in contract cheerfully. By the sale of playing cards the Government is enriched $4,000,000 a year in taxes. A bridge deck of more than fifty-two cards must pay double taxes. Those who try out the new game must pay 20 cents Federal tax on each five-suit deck, and the more the merrier for the Department of Internal Revenue.

No one asks any more: Does it violate the treaty? That's assumed.

As a member of Lopez's band, Sheetz was first saxophonist.

Sheetz will not only blend his saxophone with choruses from the Bluebrook Chorus book, but he will also deliver a short talk on his work since he has definitely devoted his life in Christian service. Sheetz is scheduled to give his talk and render his musical selections at the Young People's service of the First Baptist Church, Cedar and Walnut streets. He was originally dated to appear here on Sunday, March 6th, but due to other important engagements, had to cancel the trip to Bristol until March 20th. The service will begin at seven p. m.

Gives Reviews On Some Popular Pictures

Delight Evans in reviewing current motion pictures in the magazine "Screenland" has this to say of "Nothing Sacred":

"Most provocative picture to be seen these days, and not only once but bearable for return engagements. 'Nothing Sacred' is by way of being a screen sensation. It stayed three weeks at Manhattan's snooty Radio City Music Hall—by request. It played to those mythical native New Yorkers and to countless contented visitors, who doubtless went home to see it all over again in their neighborhood theatres, if only to hear the dialogue that was drowned in shouts of laughter—oh, yes, they laugh out loud at the Music Hall. 'Nothing Sacred' thumbs its nose at practically everything hitherto held sacred in the cinema—including even the Grim Reaper, no mean feat when you think back at the asid treatment accorded O. G. R. ever since movies began—remember all the long-drawn-out death scenes you've suffered through? Here's comedy that's unselfishly ribald and unconventionally robust. That Fright Scene, of course, is still the high spot of the screen season. Carole Lombard and Fredric March mix it—don't stop me if you've heard this, it won't do you any good—and the fair heroine, hangerover and all, is knocked out by the gallant hero. Just try to sell us any more old-fashioned lovers' quarrels after this. Cheers!"

And of "Tovarich" Delight Evans reports the following in the same magazine: "Enthrancing! 'Tovarich' is original, refreshing film fare. It presents the two most endearing leading characters you have seen in many movie months: a Grand Duchess of the Imperial regime and her consort, penniless in Paris, who 'go into service' to provide their vodka and caviar. They are artless, engaging, childlike Russians, and as they are written and acted they become memorable screen portraits. Charles Boyer and Claudette Colbert co-star, surrounded by a splendid cast. You'll follow with keen interest and sympathetic amusement their adventures as lady's maid and butler in an erratic banker's household; you'll rejoice with them in their new-found domestic felicity; you'll darn near weep with them when they are confronted by a charmingly sinister commissar who recalls none too pleasantly their tragic exile. Charles Boyer, comedian, turns out to be as perfect as Boyer the tragedian; he is, once more, a revelation in subtle, shimmering acting. Miss Colbert is, as always, a delightful personality; but she falls far short of realizing the potentialities of her priceless part. She is always Colbert, seldom the character. Melville Cooper is the new comedy as the banker, Basil Rathbone is fine, too.

HELPS RESTORATION

Beaver, maker of history as the reason for the fur trade, the conquest of the Northwest, the French and Indian war, is an active factor in wildlife restoration. Beaver dams form storage ponds, breeding places for other fur-bearers and waterfowl, checks to forest fires. In some states beaver have increased until they are a problem on trout streams, but they are easily trapped alive and transported to areas where they are an asset.

DOUGHNUT PROBLEM SOLVED BY COLLEGE
Why do doughnuts crack frequently when they are frying?
The oft-repeated problem has reached the ears of authorities in the New York State College of Home Economics, who point out that any one of the following may cause cracking: Too much baking powder, too much flour, too much shortening in the mixture, or overheating the frying shortening.

Successful years of use guarantee this recipe:

Two eggs; one cup of sugar; three tablespoons of shortening; one cup sweet milk; four cups of bread flour; one and one-half teaspoons salt; four teaspoons of baking powder; one-fourth teaspoon grated nutmeg; one-half teaspoon lemon extract.

Beat the egg well, add the sugar, beating it in gradually, then add the melted shortening and the extract. Mix and sift the dry ingredients and add them gradually, alternating with the milk. More flour may be needed, depending on how dry the mixture is, but the dough should be kept as soft as it can be handled. Pat the dough with the floured hands, or press it very lightly with a rolling pin (pressure makes the dough less tender and delicate), and cut it into shape with a floured cutter.

Cooking School pupils have learned that doughnuts are not indigestible when they are cooked correctly in a pure vegetable shortening. Fry the doughnuts in shortening that is from 350 to 370 degrees F. If a thermometer is not available, use this bread test: Drop a one-inch cube of bread into the hot shortening and remove it after six seconds. If it is a golden brown, the shortening is right for frying the doughnuts, which require about two minutes.

Different causes may turn the croquette temperamental; i. e., make it must open. Croquettes that break may be too large, the sauce combining them may have been too thin, they may have been poorly molded together, or the shortening in which they are cooked was not hot enough.

ON SCREENS IN BRISTOL

BRISTOL

Rural pictures have not been common for so long that it is a genuine novelty to welcome to the Bristol Theatre a Monogram picture called "County Fair," which will be the attraction today only.

Starting tomorrow the feature will be "Thrill of a Lifetime."

"The County Fair" embodies all the charm and peace of American rural country life.

"County Fair" is the story of a young jockey ruled off the race courses in a framed-up deal, who makes his living riding horses at county fairs, where the Turf Association cannot prevent his working. In the country, he meets a youngster who is training a winning horse, and falls in love with the boy's sister.

And though there are many complications in the path of true love, the same little jockey and his partner, who supplies the picture's comedy, meet them all. They defeat the crooked gamblers who first framed them, convert the girl's father to the idea of racing the horse, and win the big race and the heart of the girl for the jockey.

John Arledge is excellent in the leading role, and Fuzzy Knight scores as his comical sidekick. Mary Lou Lender, Columbus, Ohio, debutante making her first film appearance, shows poise and much promise, and J. Farrell MacDonald is very convincing as a mean old father who relents.

A brilliant cast of comedy players in a fast moving story of young love, done to the music from the pens of outstanding tunesmiths and produced with enough glitter and girls to hold the most rabid of musical comedy fans—that's "Thrill of a Lifetime," the merry romance of youth and music which opens at the Bristol Theatre tomorrow.

The Yacht Club Boys, Judy Canova and lovely Dorothy Lamour from the radio—that remancin' prancin' dance pair of lovers, Johnny Downs and Eleanor Whitney—Betty Grable, the girl whom artists call the nearest approach to perfection in form—Ben Blue, Leif Erikson, Larry Grable, Franklin Pangborn and The Fanchettes, one of the most highly trained chorus troupes in show business—that's the cast!

COCHRANE PINS HOPE ON UNSEEN PLAYER

(Note: Herewith is one of a series of articles by International News Service staff correspondents on the forthcoming major league races. Today, the Detroit Tigers.)

By Howard Handelman
(I. N. S. Sports Writer)

DETROIT, Mar. 19.—(INS).—Tired of trying to repeat old victories with an old machine, Mickey Cochrane of the Detroit Tigers has turned gambler this year and is betting his bottom dollar on a hole card he has not yet seen.

For two years Cochrane has sent out the team that won the world championship in 1935, attempting to win back old baseball laurels with the same combination.

For two years the bludgeoning New York Yankees have run far ahead of the Cochrane Tigers, leaving Detroit in a definite second place, games behind.

The hole card that Cochrane is holding this year is 23-year-old Mark Christman, the young Texas League third baseman who is being brought up to fill the shoes of the veteran Marvin Owen at third base. If Christman clicks as a fielder—he won't have to hit much, because Owens never did—the Cochrane gamble will be a success.

For if Christman clicks, the loss of Owen will not be felt and pitcher Vernon Kennedy, who came to Detroit in the deal that sent Owen and Gee Walker to Chicago, will be sheer profit. Dixie Walker, the outfielder who came to Detroit in the trade, is about on a par with the popular Gee and is expected to be able to step into Gee's spot without trouble.

Thus, if Christman, who starred as the best fielding third baseman in the Texas League for two years, can make good in the majors, Cochrane will have a team strengthened in pitching and not weakened appreciably in any other department.

Kennedy and Lynnwood "Schoolboy" Rowe are the crux of the Tiger pitching situation, the problem that wrecked Tiger chances last year. Cochrane is counting on Kennedy to do better than his 14-13 of last year and is banking on the recovery of Rowe, who has been virtually useless for two years with a sore arm. Rowe, in Florida most of the winter, has been pronounced fit by his physician, but it is a question whether his arm can stand the tough grind of the American League season.

Cochrane also hopes to find a starter among a crop of rookie pitchers.

New faces that may break into the Tiger infield include Frankie Crocker, from Toledo, Tony Piet, utility infielder who came from Chicago in the Kennedy trade, and Don Ross, young International League recruit.

Otherwise the Tigers will line up about the same as last year, with York, Greenberg, Gehring, Rogell, Fox and Laabs holding down regular berths on the field and Auker, Bridges, Lawson, Poffenberger and Wade doing most of the pitching.

from the crowd. Two other tap dances were a bride and groom affair, while the other was a sort of a minuet. In the bride and groom dance, Betty Little took the part of the groom with Wilma Shoemaker acting as the bride and danced their way to a "mythical" wedding going through the various motions of a marriage, then concluding with the shower of rice and the tossing of the bouquet by the bride. The girls' tap dance club put on the minuet with half of the girls dressed as farmers and the others as farmerettes, and danced in partners. To conclude the dance acts, there was a social dance given by the social dance club, exhibiting new steps learned this year.

Following a few introductory remarks by the superintendent of the school, S. K. Foss, who praised the coaches and performers for their work and giving the reason for the show, the boys' leaders club, outfitted in

One Secret of Czech Strength

View of athletic carnival

One of the reasons why Czechoslovakia commands the respect of other European countries and may be expected to make a determined stand against Nazification is the generally fine physical condition of its people, contributing to the efficiency and strength of the military. This view of an athletic congress at Prague, which will be duplicated at Prague in July at the tenth annual Sokol congress in which 45,000 participate, suggests the place which physical development and mass maneuvers have in Czechoslovakia.

white, opened the program with a march drill. Later a wand drill was presented with the girls in blue and white uniforms and the boys in all white, holding wands striped with blue and white crepe paper. The third drill was a set of free arm and marching exercises given by a group of 10th grade girls who performed as though in a gym class.

Another group of boys and girls from 8th grade also demonstrated a few games played in gym classes which amused the fans a lot. The games were "club relay," "Jako and Lena," and "Bean in the Bowl." The object of the relay race was to transport a trio of Indian clubs from one circle to another, with the first team finished, the winner. The Jaka and Lena was a blindfold game, while the Bean in the Bowl was passing a stiff person around a circle with the person unable to hold the "stiffie" up, taking the latter's place.

"Take Me Out to the Ball Game" was a rhythmic number presented by a group of seventh grade boys. Running out upon the "field," the "gang" chose sides, and then proceeded to go through, rhythmically, those motions employed in a ball game, including the umpire's motions of "out" and "safe," as well as pitching, catching, fielding and batting.

The final event on the program, which took approximately 2½ hours to complete, was a sport tableau in which three members of the football, basketball and baseball teams, and two members of the wrestling and track teams posed in a spotlight in tableau form some of the outstanding poses seen in these sports. The football group was composed of Captain Hal Robinson, Vic Swadis and Bob McGovern, the basketball was made up of Captain Joe Dedrick, Jimmy Leberman, and Alex Malone, the baseball team of Wally Oppman, Ted Edly, and Joe Cahill; the wrestling team of Alex Deans and Ed Yehle; and the track team of Bob Scarborough and Horace Fisher. Following individual poses, the group posed together in the spotlight.

The purpose of the exhibition was twofold. First, to provide satisfaction and pleasure for those taking part in it, and to acquaint the parents and friends of the students of the physical education work done in the school.

Find Man Dead in Field With Gun Clutched in Hand

heart I am writing this farewell letter."

Then continuing the letter indicates that the writer apparently intended to kill Miss Dutkiewicz as well as himself and it is believed that this was his intention early Thursday morning, when he invited her to drive him to the railroad station.

The letter continued, it is said: "I have taken my life together with her's. Bury us in the same grave with a nice funeral as there is money for it."

Detective Russo states that Olesinsky and Miss Dutkiewicz, 24, had been friends until about two months ago, when the girl learned that Olesinsky was a married man, having a wife and two children in Poland. The friendship was then broken, and Thursday morning shortly after midnight as Miss Dutkiewicz was putting her car in her father's garage, she stated she heard footsteps and saw Olesinsky approaching the car. She locked the doors and refused him entrance until he threatened to break a window. After unlocking the car door the young woman talked to Olesinsky but refused to drive him to the trolley car line. She then claims he struck her over the eye and on the head with an iron ring, making a supreme effort she states she broke from his clutches and gained the house. Later Thursday she appeared before justice of the peace Cooper at Langhorne and had a warrant issued for his arrest.

Since the issuance of the warrant Olesinsky had not been seen, and the supposition is that he became remorseful after beating Miss Dutkiewicz, and leaving the garage procured the gun and went to the field and committed suicide. A box of shells for the rifle was found in Olesinsky's pockets, well as a pair of scissors. There was also in his possession a membership card in the American Federation of Hosiery Workers.

The authorities are of the opinion that Olesinsky probably intended to kill Miss Dutkiewicz and then to end his own life.

Deputy coroner, Dr. James P. Lawler, Bristol, was summoned and had the body removed to a morgue.

Members of the Dutkiewicz family state that the man is not naturalized, and that he was unemployed at the time of his death. For the past 10 years he had boarded in Philadelphia.
